THE Louisville Courier Journal announces that "the Democrats must prepare to fight the Labor vote." It certainly looks as if that would be their only alternative. The Labor vote can not consistently be given to any principle or purpose which the Democratic party now advocates or ever did advocate; and that party must therefore resist it quite as a matter of course.

MONTANA's losses of catt'e last wintor were yery severe. The Denver Re publican says that in some districts 80 per cent of the stock was destroyed, one firm alone losing 50,000 head. The Denver paper thinks that this means the total destruction of Montana's cattle business for a time as far as the in vestment of castern capitalists is concerned, but predicts that the northwestern business in cattle between Texas and Montana will again become vigorous in a few years, and that Denver will then become a great cattle mart. As Denver is 160) miles from Montana, more or less, and its connection with the latter is a relic of the old Texas "drive" which has probably disappeared for ever, these expectations may be considered cool. When Montana stockmen are ready to take care of their cattle they can easily people their bilis with them and market them directly to the East over the Northern Pacific, as they already do with those which suryive the winters.

A call has just been issued for a gentions in the United States, to be held at Washington, D. C., Dec. 7, 8 and 9, to consider several leading questions, among which are the following: What are the present perils and opportunities of the Christian Church, and of the country? Can any of them be n et best by a hearty co-operation of all Evange lical Christians, which, without detriment to any denominational interests, will save the welfare of the whole church? What are the best means to the whole church to its responsibility? The call directs attention to the close of the nineteenth century as a proper time to see the planting of Christian institutions in the formative West and of strengthening them in the older States. Popular education has multiplied wants and created tastes which wealth has not been sufficiently distributed to gratify; bence discontent among certain classes while the conflict with the intemperate element has been drawing nearer than ever to a crisis. There are questions new to America regarding pauperism and crime, crowding in great cities, that must be met, and met in a way that will not leave such blotches on our civilization as they have done in Europe. Ail the Christian churches in the land are deeply interested in these problems, and the general conference at Washington in December is called to consider them.

The New York World prints a dispatch sent from Philadelphia which has occasioned much comment inasmuch as it goes to show the bitterness of the feeling which exists between the administration and its allies of the free trade wing of the Democratic party on one side and Sam Raudall and his followers on the other. In this dispatch it is stathe contents of a certain letter in his possession it would rain the administra'ion. In the event that at attempt is made to read Randall out of the Democratic party and in any way belittle his importance in the coming Congress, the World's dispatch is now construed as a threat of a big rumpus. The relations between the two wings of the Hon.W.C. Stewart party are now very much strained. It would not take much for either faction to do to bring on a fight that would | don Geo. Hall, break up the majority and give the Republicans either the control of the House or at least the balance of power. | Rev. C. J. Sage. It is noticeable that strenuous efforts are being made to appease the feeling of the Randall men by assuring them that the reports which have been circulated are the work of enemies. Still the administration is making ready to open out on Randall if he is not willing to march in a perceful manner with the procession. It is acknowledged that he has in in his power to seriously embarrass the majority of Democrats led by Carlisle, Mil s, and others, but if he attempts anything of the kind he will ever afterward be a marked man. Missouri is one of the principal stock-raising States because it enjoys advantages in this industry such as few States even in the great stock-raising region pessess. Its lands are cheap and fertile, and its climate is conducive to the health of all farm animals, being salubrious in the spring, summer | Prot and autumn months and in winter having none of the polar temperature Northwest. Combined with the advantages already noted, there is an abundance of rich wild grass in the localities in which cuttivated grass is not produced, while no streams of pure and wholesome water. Speaking broadly, it may be said that tor stock-raising on a large scale, for those possessing ample means, the best place is that portion of the State north of the Missouri River, anywhere between the eastern and western boundary line, or south of the river in any part of the State west of a line drawn. say from Jefferson City southward to the southeaster;y corner of Ozark county. Considering favorableness of climate and facilities of reaching the market, the region referred to offers at least as great advantages for stockraising on a colossal scale as can be obtained in any of the Territories in which that is the principal industry. For stock-raising on a smaller scale, the remainder of the State is peculiary

The advantages which Missouri possesses for stock-raising render it re markably adaptable also to the kindred industries of dairying and wool production. A large part of the land of the State is undulating, small streams are numerous, shade is abundant, and the best quality of blue grass grows luxuriantly. With all its physical advantages, however, Missouri labors under one important moral disadvantage. Its attractions are less known outside the State than are those of almost any other Common-wealth. With all the elements which are requisite to make a State great and prosperous, nature has ly attempted to tell the country or the world anything about this. Immigration is pouring into the State at present in a larger volume than at any period in the past, but this volume is small compered with what it would be if the advantages which the State offers were known to the average person seeking a settlement in the West .- Globa Domo-
